

Telecommunication Services Audit

We'll ask you to provide us with copies of current and historical invoices, as well as existing contracts for all of your telecommunications services. This would include broadband, local and long distance, internet services, calling cards, audio and data conferencing services, wide area networking services, cellular phones, fax lines, modem lines, etc... We will pour over these invoices with a microscope and find any discrepancies between your contracted rates and your actual costs. We may also do some behavior auditing to determine if services are being properly utilized. I.e. Cell phones used regularly for international calling vs. calling cards, improper minute pooling for cell phones, etc. In addition, we may also ask for your authorization to re-negotiate these contracts to get you better rates.

The cost of this Telecommunication Services Audit varies depending on how much money we save you. We generally ask for 50% of your first year of savings. So if we find an un-used phone line at $30 per month, the one year savings is $$30 \times 12 = \360 . We'll ask for $180. Your three year savings is $$360 \times 3 = \1080 , minus our fee of $180, equals $900.

We may also be able to secure certain technology upgrades at no cost such as new cell phones, increase in bandwidth/speed of data services, phone system upgrades, etc. We may charge a small percentage fee for these findings.

The billing may be a bit confusing (what Telecom bills aren't?), but the bottom line is, we don't make money unless we save you money. All we ask for is a $500 deposit. If we don't find any way to save you money; you receive that deposit back.
